

St. Louis Public Radio

Legacy Society

Each of us has the opportunity to enrich the future of St. Louis Public Radio through the actions we take today. By joining the St. Louis Public Radio Legacy Society, you create a personal legacy for future generations of public radio fans.

The St. Louis Public Radio Legacy Society honors those who have designated a gift to the station through their wills or other estate plans.

If you have already included STLPR in your plans, please let us know so we can thank you now and invite you to special events for Legacy Society members. The information you share will be confidential and you may choose to remain anonymous if you prefer.

For more information about the Legacy Society or estate giving please contact:

A service of the University of Missouri-St. Louis

Play a leadership role in the future of St. Louis Public Radio.

Cornerstone Society members support the station's annual operations and enable innovative new projects with generous annual contributions of $1,200 or more.

This active group of engaged donors come together frequently with station leaders and news and program staff to discuss ideas and issues of current concern. At a variety of private events, you can share your thoughts with other Cornerstone Society members and talk with local and national public radio hosts and reporters.
